The ongoing third plenary session of the 20th Communist Party of China (CPC) Central Committee is tasked with starting a new round of strategic and pace-setting reforms to advance Chinese modernization, once again testifying to the Party's courage, resolve and wisdom.

The significance of China's reforms is evident. For more than 40 years, the reform and opening up has created a miracle of rapid economic growth and ever-rising international prestige, laying a solid foundation for the country to achieve rejuvenation of the Chinese nation.

Having withstood numerous daunting tests and achieved tremendous success from humble beginnings, reform efforts have now entered a "deep-water zone."

Reform to sustain 5 percent growth: Economist

With the third plenary session of the 20th CPC Central Committee outlining further reform to address structural issues, Liu Qiao, dean of Peking University's Guanghua School of Management, told China Daily that China is likely to maintain economic growth of about 5 percent through 2029, setting the stage for doubling its GDP per capita from its 2020 level by 2035 and basically achieving Chinese modernization.
